GFC NAMED AGENT IN DISPUTE

At its meeting March 7, the Board of Governors authorized the General Faculty Council to act as its agent in negotiating the tenure dispute involving SETHART FISHER and DONALD WHITESIDE, Assistant Professors of Sociology. The Board issued the following statement:

"It has come to the attention of the Board of Governors that the tenure cases of Dr. S. Fisher and Dr. D. Whiteside may require departures in established tenure procedures in order to ensure that they are given a fair hearing.

"Since contracts of employment are negotiated between individual members of staff and the Governors of The University of Alberta, the only parties who have legal rights in the matter are the staff members themselves and the Governors.

"At The University of Alberta, the Governors do not normally deal with individual cases. As far as possible, they deal only with policy and procedure. In order to preserve this practice, the Governors now appoint the General Faculty Council as their agent to negotiate with the members of staff involved, the conditions under which a fair hearing will be held.

"The Governors are aware that a special meeting of General Faculty Council will be held at 2 p.m., Tuesday, March 11, to consider a proposal submitted by the Chairman of the Academic Welfare Committee of the Association of the Academic Staff of The University of Alberta. It is our hope that agreement will be reached."

AWARDS BANQUET HELD

On March 7, the University played host to members of the Non-Academic Staff Association, formerly Branch 22 of the Civil Service Association of Alberta, at the third reception and banquet for the presentation of long service awards. The event, held in Lister Hall, was attended by WALTER H. JOHNS, President of the University, who presented the Long Service Awards, and L. E. STEWART, President of the Civil Service Association of Alberta, who presented Branch 22 Service

The Flavios Amphitheatre, or Colosseum, in Rome: a Department of Classics charter flight takes you there this summer.

Pins. It was the last such presentation, since Branch 22 has gone out of existence.

Long Service Awards were presented by Dr. Johns to fifteen persons. Branch 22 service pins went to 17 people. Thirty-year pins were presented to S. A. KEEBLE of the Old Residences, JOSEPH P. STANSFIELD of Caretaking Services, and W. G. L. TWIGGE from the Department of Extension. F. C. DEDMAN, a technician in the Undergraduate Laboratories of the Department of Physiology, received a 40-year pin. Life Memberships in the Association were presented to RAYMOND DELANE, R. F. SHEPARD, and J. P. STANSFIELD, all retired. THOMAS ROBINSON of the Power Plant has retired and will receive a life membership.

A unique feature of the banquet was the presentation by Dr. Johns of charter memberships in the recently-formed Double Decade Club, consisting of University staff members with 20 or more years of service to the University. The club was formed in October, 1968, at the suggestion of LORREN BICE of Industrial Arts after a conversation with Dr. Johns, who submitted the first application for membership. At the banquet, Dr. Johns was presented with a wall plaque facsimile of the club pin.

The Non-Academic Staff Association, formerly Branch 22 of the Civil Service Association of Alberta, expresses its appreciation to The University of Alberta for providing the banquet.

This series will be the eighth of an annual lecture series to commemorate over 40 years of outstanding service rendered to the University by R. B. SANDIN.

Dr. Barton is a Professor of Organic

Dr. Barton, Dr. Sevchenko.

Chemistry at Imperial College and one of the world's foremost organic chemists. He holds the degrees of Ph.D. and D.Sc. from the University of London. He served as Assistant Lecturer and Research Fellow at Imperial College from 1945 to 1949. In 1950, he was appointed Reader in Organic Chemistry at Birkbeck College, and in 1953 became Professor of Organic Chemistry at Birkbeck. In 1955, he was appointed Regius Professor of Chemistry at Glasgow, and assumed his present position in 1957.

For years the Faculty of Law was housed in the Arts Building. When the Cameron Library opened in the summer of 1964, space was found in the Rutherford Library for the Faculty: the Rutherford location brought Law's offices, classrooms, and library into the same building. Enrollment in Law has grown rapidly: 96 in 1958-59, 118 in 1963-64, 250 in 1968-69. Next year, 300 students are expected.

Law Centre to be first structure in North Garneau development

The Faculty of Law, the second oldest faculty in the University, is the only Canadian common law school but one without its own quarters. It will soon have its own facilities, however, as the first development of the North Garneau area will include a 118,000 gross square feet Law Centre in four stories, with a proposed completion in time for the academic year 1971-72. The plans were approved by the

The Law Centre viewed from northwest. The main entrance is at the left in the picture. The building's exterior is almost symmetrical around its diagonal axes.

Building Committee of the Board of Governors last month. The target cost has been set at 3.3 million dollars.

The Faculty, presently with its teaching staff dispersed in three locations and lectures held in various buildings on campus, will then move into a building with large library facilities on three floors, classrooms, a moot court room, faculty and administrative offices, graduate students' research spaces, and student common spaces. The building, which will look somewhat different from most of the buildings on campus with stairwells, exposed columns and exposed structural walls of "unfinished" cast-in-place textured concrete, has been designed for further expansion, and on the developmental plan a future moot court auditorium and classrooms are indicated.

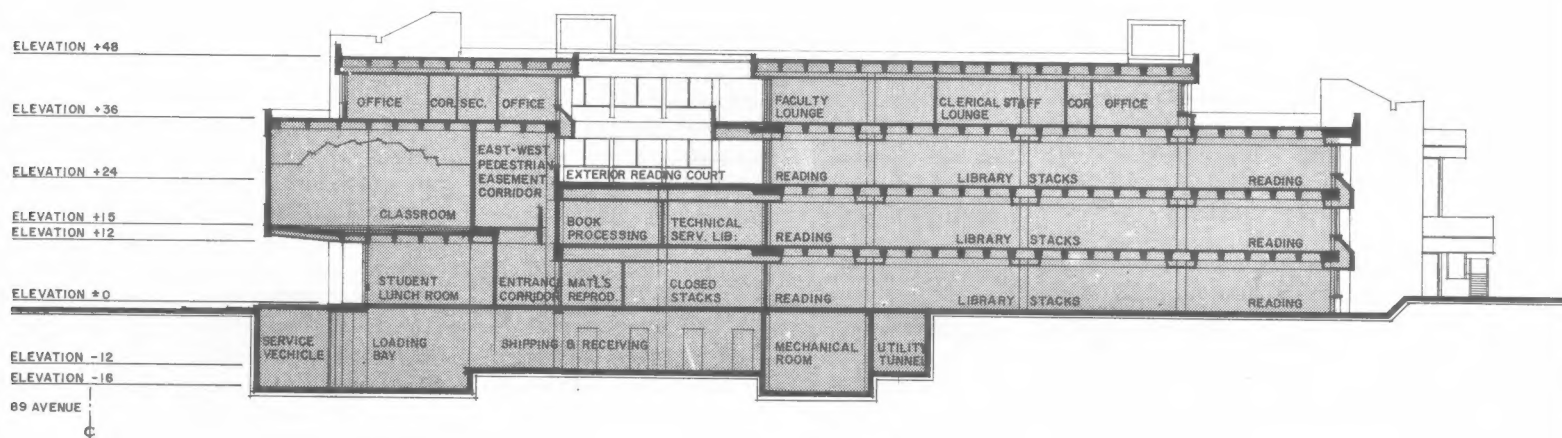

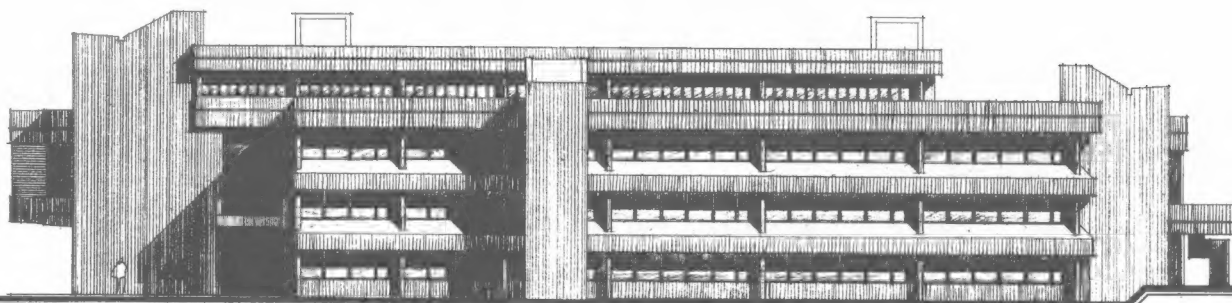

The site of the building will be approximately at the corner of 89 Avenue and 111 Street. The students' common facilities will have a north orientation towards the proposed open plaza connecting the Law Centre, the proposed humanities library, and humanities teaching buildings. The first level of the Law Centre will include a student lounge and a lunchroom, seminar rooms, classrooms, student offices, material reproduction room; and graduate student offices. The second level, which will be connected by an elevated walkway to adjacent academic buildings, includes classrooms and moot court facilities. The main library entrance will be on this floor, although the library extends through the first and third floors, permitting a capacity of about 200,000 volumes. The third level will thus be mainly occupied by the library, while the fourth will provide facilities for administration and faculty members, including a lounge, library and conference space, and the Institute of Law Research and Reform, the Office of Continuing Legal Education, and the Office of Bar Admission. The basement will be connected to other buildings by a utilities tunnel and a tunnel for service vehicles, the tunnels running parallel in an east-west direction. In the basement there will also be service areas.

The building proposal was prepared by Bittorf Pinckston Planning Consultants. Structural engineers are McBride Ragan Consulting Engineers Ltd.; mechanical engineers, H. W. Klassen & Associates Ltd.; electrical engineers, W. R. Cheriton & Associates Ltd.; and acoustical consultants, Barron & Strachan Consulting Acoustical Engineers.

Architectural drawing of the north elevation, with main entrance to the left, and (below) section seen from north.

The first stage of development of North Garneau will be the 3.3 million dollar Law Centre situated at the corner of 89 Avenue and 111 Street. The plan shows the building (1) with its proposed future expansions, (2) a moot court auditorium, and (3) classrooms. Other buildings, vaguely indicated, have not yet been definitely sited. The present campus buildings may be identified in the left third of the plan. 111 Street will be left open for some time after the construction of the Law Building, to connect 87 Avenue at the bottom of the plan, with Saskatchewan Drive at the top. Indicated is also a proposed freeway and bridge, the exact location and design of which is not yet decided.
